Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Keeping Out Billboards by Retarding the Development Here

THE city of Glendale is to have an ordinance whereby billboards will be taxed. Under the provisions of this ordinance a building permit must be secured at a cost of $2 before the boards are erected and an additional tax of $1 per square foot must be paid for all signs over 12 square feet in size.

This ordinance undoubtedly will have some retarding effect on the promiscuous placing of signboards on every vacant lot. There is nothing that spoils the beauty of a town any more than having signboards plastered all over the city.

We are of the opinion that an ordinance prohibiting billboards would be more beneficial than allowing them to be erected, providing a tax is paid.

* * *

BILLBOARDS are seldom used by local merchants as an advertising medium. They are generally used by national advertisers, endeavoring to secure the trade without paying locally for the advertisement.

The much used and abused dodger is another cause for the unsightly appearance of a city. If sent through the mails or delivered to the doors of the houses they would not be so bad, but the general habit of the delivery boys throwing them in the handiest place in order to get rid of them as quickly as possible is getting to be a nuisance. Automobiles if parked for only a short time are used as a favorite target and the owner on his return finds bills on the floor and seats in numbers. As a rule in desperation they are thrown out in the street without having been glanced at and are left to clutter up until the street sweeper adds them to his pile of trash for the garbage collector.

* * *

NOMINALLY the dullest building month of the year, July closed today with a record of $523,236 of new construction ordered making a total of $5,712,171 for this record breaking year of growth of Glendale.

This is approximately one hundred per cent over the record of $374,850 for the corresponding month of 1922, but only a few thousand over the next known single unit of new construction planned to begin in August, being the new $300,000 hotel at Brand and California the design for which has just been ordered.

* * *

THE prospects for another more than half million construction by August's end are very clear with the opening of the fall season to bring the months up to the million dollar standard set in January.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED BY THE DENNISONS

A family dinner today will serve as a quiet celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Dennison of 702 East Harvard. Covers will be laid for their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Dennison, and daughter Geraldine; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cassidy and daughters, Elizabeth and Kathleen; Mrs. A. W. Dennison and son, P. M. Dennison of Los Angeles; the host and hostess, and Mrs. Maggie Mason, sister of Mrs. D. R. Dennison.

The honorees were married in Erie Kansas. She was a southern girl who had been educated in St. Louis and New Orleans; he was a son of Pennsylvania who had come out west to grow up with the country.

Feeling the urge to move still further toward the land of the setting sun they came to California thirty-four years ago and settled in Ventura County, near Santa Barbara. Six years ago they located in Glendale and became loyal boosters for this city.

HARDING IS WINNING IN HIS BATTLE

Seems to Have Scored in Preliminary Stages of Fight

TEMPERATURE GOOD

Apparently Has Clear Sailing to Complete Recovery

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) President Harding appeared today to have won the first preliminary skirmish in his fight against broncho-pneumonia and attending complications.

An official bulletin issued by the five physicians attending him said there had been no extension during the night and early part of the day of the pneumonic areas and the heart action was definitely improved. It added that he also had been benefitted by a fairly comfortable night with considerable restful sleep.

The president, the bulletin said, had expressed he was feeling better and was less exhausted. His temperature at 9 a. m. was given as 100, about a degree less than that of yesterday; pulse 120, a drop of five from yesterday, and his respiration 40 and regular as contrasted with 44 and irregular, as given in reports of yesterday.

Equally as assuring as the official bulletin was the statement by Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, Mr. Harding's personal physician, made informally at 8 a. m., as follows:

"The president had the best night comparatively that he has had since his illness began. That augurs well. The conditions seem to warrant the statement that apparently he has gotten into clear sailing."

Approximately six hours' sleep were obtained by the chief executive during the night and when he awakened about 6 o'clock his first request was for the morning newspapers.

Unofficial word from the president's chamber, made known to newspaper men shortly before noon, said the next consultation of attending physicians would be called for 4 o'clock this afternoon and followed by a formal statement by the doctors about 5 p. m.

General Sawyer said that Mrs. Harding was standing the strain well, adding that she was of the type "who is best under fire."

"Determined," he said, "to give the American people all the facts in the case of the president," General Sawyer last night had a long talk with newspapermen, discussing the condition of the executive in non-technical language and answering questions put to him.

In his talk General Sawyer said a fight was on between the attacking forces as represented in complications growing out of the original ptomaine poisoning and the president's physical resistance, weakened by nearly four days and approximately 7500 miles of traveling. The physician then added gravely:

"We are running with a very handicapped machine."

The problem faced is to strengthen or repair the machine or physique so as to combat the attacks, Dr. Sawyer further explained.

POLICE CLEAN UP PETTY THIEVES IN GLENDALE

Capture Edgar Wiseman in Act of Robbing Store

Edgar Wiseman, 4133 Parkdale avenue, Los Angeles, and Leo Robbins, Magnolia street, Los Angeles, who were arrested in the act of robbing a store at the corner of Western and San Fernando road, Sunday morning, by Officer Blake, were turned over to the juvenile authorities in Los Angeles on order of Judge Lowe, Monday afternoon, according to police records. Charles Sterner of 520 S. San Fernando, who was picked up at the same time, was turned over to his mother.

The police claim that in the arrest of Wiseman and Robbins, they have cleaned up the gang that has been committing petty thefts in the western part of Glendale during the past several months.

Vice President Coolidge Listens for News From San Francisco

PLYMOUTH, Vt., July 31.—(United Press) Cal Coolidge, as they call him here, where the older folks have known him since his barefoot days, is going to remain in this little Vermont village and will receive the news of President Harding's condition from his secretary at Washington over Plymouth's one long distance telephone.

The vice-president of the United States was visibly worried today as he lounged about in his easy-going farm clothes with an ear turned to the tinkle of the telephone bell in the "general store" just across the lane from the Coolidge farm.

This little Green mountain hamlet has only a few inhabitants, rawboned, weather-beaten, toil-hardened farmers, and most of them are gathered at "the store," getting the news from San Francisco second-hand from Coolidge, who discusses calmly with them each development.

BILL BOARD ORDINANCE IS ADOPTED

Provides for Heavy Taxes on Construction in Glendale

PROTEST IS FILED

Representative of Los Angeles Company Fails to Make Impression

The billboard ordinance for Glendale, which has been hanging fire for the past six months, was adopted by that body Monday night. This ordinance provides that those desiring to erect boards of this character must take out a building permit for $2 for each board and pay $1 per square foot for all signs over 12 square feet in size. An amendment to this ordinance requiring billboard men to place the license numbers and also the number of the permit on all signs, was adopted.

Both the ordinance and the amendment were adopted on motion of Councilman Davis, seconded by Councilman Kimlin.

Mr. Handy of the Foster & Kleiser company, one of the leading signboard companies in Southern California, appeared before the board and protested against the passage of this ordinance. Councilman Davis stated that although they had the highest regard for the Foster & Kleiser company they did not want its signboards.

"We have two good newspapers in this city," said Mayor Robinson, "and we feel that it would be far better for the merchants of this city to advertise in them and not have the streets and highways of the city disfigured by signboards."

FREIGHT CARS ARE WRECKED ON S. P. TRACK

Nine Are Piled Into Heap at Doran and San Fernando Road

Excitement reigned in Glendale when it was learned that the southbound freight No. 102, due to arrive in Los Angeles at about 7 o'clock last night, had been wrecked between Broadway and Doran street at 6:30 o'clock, nine cars piling up, throwing the contents of the cars over the tracks and in the nearby barley field.

The mishap was caused through the burning out of a journal of a wheel on the twenty-second car of the fifty-six car train. The axle, dropping to the track, dug into the ties, finally ripping up a rail, which resulted in one of the cars leaving the track. As the train came on car after car left the tracks and piled up against each other, the nine cars, which were filled with various kinds of merchandise, being badly smashed.

The truck containing the axle that caused the trouble was thrown about 50 feet clear of the tracks and out into the barley field.

Coast line traffic was, as a result of the wreck, held up more than three hours.

The wrecking crew arrived about one hour after the accident and by quick work managed to clear one of the tracks in a little over two hours.

BULLETINS ON MR. HARDING'S ILLNESS

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) President Harding was so far refreshed by a sleep which lasted more than six hours last night that he said this morning he felt able to look at the news of the day and sent out for the morning papers, all of which were devoted largely to accounts of his illness.

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) President Harding passed the "best night comparatively since he has been ill," Brigadier General Sawyer, his personal physician, said in a statement made at 8 o'clock this morning.

"The president has had the best night comparatively that he has had since his illness began," said General Sawyer. "That augurs well. The conditions seem to warrant the statement that apparently he has gotten into clear sailing."

General Sawyer confined his announcement to this brief statement, coming out from a consultation with the other attending physicians to meet the newspapermen.

Word from the president's sick room, through another source, supported the belief that grew during the night—a belief that he was getting a rather good night's sleep. He took some nourishment this morning and read the morning papers, it also was learned.

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) "The president had a fairly comfortable night with considerable restful sleep," said the bulletin. "His temperature at 9 a. m. is 100, pulse 120, respiration 40, and regular. There has been no extension of the pneumonic areas and the heart action is definitely improved.

"Nourishment and fluids are being taken regularly. Elimination is satisfactory.

"He expressed himself as feeling better and less exhausted.

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) Definite indications of the improvement in the condition of President Harding were contained in an official bulletin issued at 10 a. m. today by the attending physicians.

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—(By the Associated Press) General Sawyer gave the Associated Press the following informal statement at 12:35 p. m. today:

"I am glad to report to you that the president's condition as recited in the morning bulletin is still holding favorably."

HEART STIMULANT KILLS MRS. EDITH T. STRIDLING

Sought Aid and Found Death From Veronal at Home

In an effort to overcome the fatigue which she suffered as a result of a trip from San Francisco to Glendale, Sunday, Mrs. Edith Taylor Stridling, of 343 West Lomita, swallowed an overdose of veronal, which resulted in her death at 7:30 o'clock Monday night. After taking the poison the unfortunate woman did not regain consciousness.

Upon noticing the serious condition of his wife, Sunday night, Mr. Stridling called Dr. Mabry, who worked over the patient all that night, Monday. Mrs. Stridling's body was taken to the L. G. Scovern Undertaking parlors on South Brand, and the coroner was notified.

On Sunday night occurred the reunion of Mr. and Mrs. Stridling, following several weeks of separation. Mr. Stridling came to Glendale, it is understood, in search of work. He found employment and had provided a place for himself and wife at 343 West Lomita—then he sent for Mrs. Stridling.

Sunday Mrs. Stridling came south. The trip was so trying on her health that she decided to resort to a stimulant, police state. She purchased a box of veronal, according to the police department, and by mistake took an overdose.

LYDIA CLASS OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH PICNIC

About forty members of the Lydia Class of the Glendale Presbyterian Church and members of their families enjoyed the annual class picnic Monday evening in Verdugo Woodlands Park.

In her absence the vice-president, Mrs. David Johnson, was called upon to preside at a short business session which was succeeded by a social hour following the supper. The serving of that feast was in charge of Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. R. W. Mottern and Miss Sargent.

KRESS OPENING SET FOR FRIDAY

Friday, August 3, the Kress company will open its handsome new 5, 10 and 25-cent store in Glendale. The public will be welcomed from 3 until 5 in the afternoon, and from 7:30 to 9 in the evening. Starum's orchestra will furnish music on both occasions. No goods will be sold during these hours, but an opportunity will be given the residents of Glendale to inspect the magnificent new stock, so attractively displayed. The public is offered the same high quality merchandise at the same prices as prevail at other Kress stores.

It is unnecessary to try to tell about all of the wonderful values to be found in Kress stores, for Kress values and Kress service are known from coast to coast.

The Glendale store is housed in a very large and very handsome structure, designed and executed by the architectural and construction departments of S. H. Kress and company. It is ultra-modern, being equipped with every known convenience which can in any way facilitate sales and service.

The inside is finished in mahogany and great windows flood the store with daylight, making artificial lighting necessary only at night.

Especial attention has been given to the quick and efficient handling of sales. The candy section is a model of cleanliness, and is supplemented by a large reserve candy room fitted to care for the huge incoming shipments. The ribbon counter will carry novelty ribbons as well as plain ones in all the wanted colors. A special lighting system has been installed in the jewelry section, making it the brightest spot in the store.

Saturday morning at 8:30 the residents of Glendale will have some splendid bargains offered them at the opening sale. Notice special advertisement in the Press.

$300,000 HOTEL DESIGN AWARDED ALFRED PRIEST

Structure to Be Built at Brand Boulevard and California

Alfred Priest, one of twelve competitors who submitted designs for the new $300,000 hotel to be built at the corner of Brand and California, has been commissioned to prepare the plans and specifications. The award was made at a meeting of the board of directors held at 116 South Brand Monday evening. It was the third session at which the designs had been considered and the decision may therefore be regarded as the seasoned judgment of the officials who took the action. Present at the meeting were: Dr. E. H. Parker, J. A. Endicott, Henry C. Jenson, D. H. Smith, J. B. Burn, and Mattison B. Jones. Director R. F. Kitterman was not able to be there.

Mr. Priest estimated about thirty days would be consumed in the preparation of plans and specifications. The financing of the project was completed some time ago and as soon as the plans and specifications are available, the board will advertise for bids.

The tentative design on which the award was made is on display at the office of J. A. Endicott. It calls for an "H" shaped building of four stories and basement, the ground floor to be divided into eleven stores, six of which will face Brand, the balance California. In the center above the first floor will be a court which will make it possible for every room to be an outside room. The south wing facing California will be divided into apartment suites, and the north wing into single rooms with bath adapted to the uses of a commercial hotel.

The organization which has promoted the hotel and which is capitalized at $500,000, is known as the Glendale Hotel company.

GLENDALE AVENUE LIGHTING PLANS SUBMITTED

Council Acts on Recommendations of Plant Manager

Recommendations with regard to the ornamental lighting situation in Glendale were presented to the Glendale council by P. Deiterich, manager of the plant and production department of the city, Monday night. These recommendations, after being somewhat amended by the council, were adopted as a future policy of that body.

The recommendations of Mr. Deiterich were as follows:

"In regard to request of your honorable body for report on ornamental street lighting —

"I believe that well lighted streets are a good advertisement for any city. The kind of standards, number of globes per standard and the candlepower to be used in same should be given very close consideration, as they all make up the cost of installation and maintainance. They should also be considered from the viewpoint of harmonizing appearance.

"We have in the city of Glendale east and west boulevards such as Los Feliz road, Colorado street, Broadway, and will probably have another boulevard in the northern part of the city from Verdugo road to the Burbank city limits, and the north and south boulevards, such as Verdugo road, Glendale boulevard, Brand boulevard, Central avenue and San Fernando road, all of which may be termed specifically as main arteries of travel. To light these I believe is a good policy but to light them extensively with two light ornamental standards will cost from $2000 to $2500 per mile per year.

"There are about 20 miles of main boulevards in our city at the present time, not including the contemplated boulevard through the northern part of the city from Verdugo road to the Burbank city limits.

"Now, I believe that these boulevards can be satisfactorily lighted with one-light ornamental standards, as lamps are now made in all sizes up to 2500 candle power, inclusive, and as the larger units are most efficient and lesser units of glassware to maintain makes a single unit more preferable from a maintainance standpoint. Also, the one-light standard installation costs about 40 per cent less.

"I would recommend two-light standards to be installed on business streets only and then only after the same is established as a business street. In my opinion a business street would consist at the present time of Brand boulevard its entire length, Broadway from Central to Adams, Glendale avenue from Colorado street to Wilson avenue, and Colorado from Central to Verdugo road.

"I would think at the present time it would be good policy to allow the installation of two-light standards spaced at an average distance of about 130 feet apart, and placed in opposite positions, the installation being made to use 400 candle power lamps at the present time, and so that later they could be increased to 600 candle power lamps.

"Brand boulevard, being a much wider street, will have to be given a larger candle power installation, especially in the heart of the city.

"For the boulevard or main thoroughfare lighting I would recommend the installation of one light design, spaced on an average of about 150 feet apart, placed opposite in spacing, installed with 400 candle power lights now and provision made to increase to 600 candle power later.

"I would recommend for residence street lighting that a one-light design be used with an average spacing of about 125 feet apart with staggered spacing, using lamps from 400 candle power lamps so designed that they may be increased later up to 250 candle power."

The amendments decided upon by the council were as follows:

The placing of the two-light standards on Glendale avenue from San Fernando road to Monterey; on Colorado, from Central to Verdugo road; on Broadway from San Fernando to Wilson, and on Central, from Los Feliz to Wilson.

FERRY GETS IMPROVEMENT ON GLENDALE

Bid of $156,931.50 for Pavement Is Accepted by City

TO START AT ONCE

Big Force of Men to Be Put to Work to Hustle It Through

The contract for the improvement of Glendale avenue was awarded Monday night by the Glendale city council to Peter L. Ferry. This covers the improvement of this avenue from Cerritos avenue to Lexington.

This is the largest street contract ever let in this city, the amount of the bid being $156,931.50. This street will consist of a three and one-half inch base of asphaltic concrete, with a wearing surface of one and one-half inches of National top coating.

When seen last night Mr. Ferry had the following to say about the improvement of this street:

"I expect to start this improvement within 15 days and to have the job completed within 90 days. This will keep me going every minute, but right from the start I am going to employ a large crew of men. This will range during the work from between 40 and 50 men, along with the necessary horsepower, machinery, etc. I am going to hurry this job along in the best time possible, for I realize that this is one of the most important streets in Glendale.

"I am going to establish my own plant for the mixing of the base material and I understand the National people are making arrangements for the mixing of its material within this city. It is possible that I will join with that company in the establishment of a central mixing and treating plant. The rock will be secured from the nearby quarries. Everything possible will be done to push this work along as fast as possible."

ANYBODY WANT A REAL BOY AT HOME?

Earl Haywood Taken Up by Police Is Looking for a Dad

Earl Haywood, 15 years old, wants a home.

It was a pathetic story that Earl told the police department after being picked up by a Glendale officer at the corner of San Fernando and Los Feliz at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning. It ran something like this:

Back in Phoenix, Arizona, Earl's mother died when he was six months old, which in itself was a tremendous handicap to the little chap, who was the only child in the family. Several years later Earl's father married again, his step mother having one child of her own. Things did not go well in the Haywood home, and as the years wore away, Earl's position became more and more difficult. The stepmother did not understand—it was his own mother that Earl needed. Finally the treatment Earl received became unbearable, and as the first man-thoughts and ideas came into his head he naturally rebelled against the ill treatment.

So Earl left home. He wandered westward, hardly knowing where he went. He knew he was on his way—that was all. Sunday morning the lad was found wandering aimlessly at San Fernando and Los Feliz, not knowing where to find a sheltered place to rest.

He is now at the Glendale police department. Earl is a polite, refined youngster and he says he wants a home—a real home, where he can be one of the family and where he can experience a few of the home joys every lad is entitled to. He wants a "mother" who will love him, and a "dad" who will roughhouse him now and then and make a real pal of him. That's all he asks.

"I'm not lazy," said Earl this morning. "I want to work and a chance to go to school. I'm not looking for a snap. I've never known what a real home is. I've just been kicked about, that's all. But there's a home for me, somewhere, and I'm determined to find it. There surely is someone somewhere who is willing to give me a chance."

Anyone interested can find Earl at the police department. Call Glendale 1300.

The bid of the Austin Western Road Machinery company for a road roller for Glendale was accepted at Monday night's meeting of the Glendale city council. This bid was $5,475, the idea being that the present road roller of the city will be taken as part payment of $1,900.

MILLARDE WINS IN 'TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD'

One of the reasons "The Town That Forgot God" is eagerly awaited by the motion picture fans of the country is that Harry Millarde directed this spectacular Fox production. Millarde's chief claim to fame is, of course, the fact that he directed "Over the Hill."

But ever so many picture fans seem to think that Millarde suddenly burst into the screen world with "Over the Hill." They forget the years of hard work before Millarde was able to climb to the top of the ladder. Wherefore some facts about the man may be in order.

Millarde's people, as he himself puts it, were "just folks." He was born in Springfield, Ohio, but shortly afterward the family moved to Cincinnati, and it was there he was brought up. Incidentally, he still roots for the Cincinnati team when it visits the Polo Grounds to play the New York Giants.

At the Cincinnati College of Music, Millarde studied elocution. Unlike most people who study it, he really had a good voice and considerable acting ability. After the usual ventures into amateur theatricals, he joined the old Forepaugh Stock company of Cincinnati.

Several years of training in stock found him ready for bigger things and he appeared in productions in support of such famous actors as James K. Hackett, Walker Whiteside and Robert Mantell. The Kalem Motion Picture company then made him an offer that he accepted, and for three years he remained with that company.

COLLAPSIBLE ICE TONGS

Ice tongs of a collapsing variety are useful for lifting small pieces of ice from a glass ice bowl to the individual glasses, or for using on a picnic to move ice taken along to keep things cool. These are interesting devices that can be opened in two ways, for the larger chunks of ice, and one for the smaller pieces such as one has in an ice bowl on the table or refreshment tray.

HARDING BATTLES FOR LIFE

Pen Picture of the Conflict in the Sick Room

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—President Harding is better this morning. A good night's rest—the best since he became ill—caused his personal physician. Dr. Charles Sawyer to issue an optimistic statement on the president's condition, ending a night of anxiety caused by unfavorable developments last evening.

Dr. Sawyer felt so relieved over the president's improvement that he did not wait for the morning consultation of specialists but passed the word of cheer on to the nation immediately after he had seen Mr. Harding at 8 a. m.

Several hours of restful sleep apparently strengthened the president in his fight to throw off both pneumonia and ptomaine poisons.

"His condition seems to warrant my statement that we are now about to have clearer sailing," was the cheerful note in Sawyer's statement.

As a note of caution, however, Dr. Sawyer pointed out that the announcement antedated the consultation of the five specialists in attendance.

Dr. Sawyer showed no signs of extraordinary worry over the president's condition. At the conclusion of his talk with newspaper men he returned immediately to the presidential suite.

It was believed that his associate physicians were assembling there for the morning's consultation, although this was not known definitely.

Members of the president's immediate party seemed much more cheerful and greatly encouraged this morning.

At 8:30 Mrs. Harding was still abed and was reported as enjoying a needed rest.

President Harding's five physicians gathered in his sick room early today to mark the progress of the battle going on there against the reaching hand of Death.

From their early morning examination of the president and subsequent consultation, word was awaited which would tell a waiting world whether Mr. Harding's will, aided by the agencies of science, was pushing back that clutching hand.

A bulletin on the president's condition was promised as early as conditions in the sick room would permit.

This bulletin, it was expected, would show whether the broncho-pneumonia condition which developed in the president's right lung with alarming suddenness last night had subsided or progressed unfavorably for the patient. It also was expected to reveal how Mr. Harding's heart, already overtaxed, is standing up under its unequal task of combating poisons in the digestive system and the congestion in the lung.

All through the night, Dr. C. E. Sawyer, Dr. Joel T. Boone and Dr. Hubert Work, the three physicians with the presidential party, alternated in keeping watch over him. No word came from the sick chamber, however, to the watchers outside, who included most of the members of the party who accompanied the president on the long trip which was halted here so suddenly by his illness.

Everybody realized last night that Mr. Harding was facing a desperate fight for life and that it was mainly a fight of his will, for his body was too weak to throw off the creeping poisons.

Announcement that Mr. Harding's condition was grave was made by the five attending physicians in an official bulletin issued at 9:15 following an examination and consultation. This bulletin disclosed the fact that an X-ray examination made earlier in the evening had shown Mr. Harding to be suffering from broncho-pneumonia of the right lung. The bulletin was as follows:

"Definite central patches of broncho-pneumonia have developed in the right lung, as indicated clinically and by the X-ray. Nourishment is being taken regularly and the abdominal symptoms are less noticeable. While his condition is grave, he is temperamentally well adapted to make a strong fight against the infection.

"Pulse, temperature and respiration are about the same as shown in the previous report."

The previous report referred to was an official bulletin issued at 5:30 p. m., in which Mr. Harding's condition was called "serious."

That statement said:

"The president's condition is as follows: Temperature 100.6 degrees; pulse 125; respiration 44 and somewhat irregular. There is some cough and evidence of congestion in one lung. He has taken some nourishment. Except for weakness and restlessness, he has been fairly comfortable during the day. His condition is a serious one."

That bulletin, in turn, had succeeded an optimistic one issued before noon. The tone of the 5:30 bulletin caused apprehension, because it contained the first admission that Mr. Harding was in a serious condition.

About 7:30 p. m., Dr. Sawyer, his chief physician, in a frank statement said that almost any sort of complications was possible. He said pneumonic inflammation was among the possibilities, though at that hour he would not class it as liable. He said the X-ray examination had been made to determine just what the possible developments of the next few hours would be, and to check up on the clinical observations made during the day relative to the condition of lungs and heart.

Dr. Sawyer said then that the case was clearly serious, but not grave and that if the physicians used the word grave, it would be advisedly and would indicate a distinct turn for the worse.

It was less than two hours until Dr. Sawyer signed his name to the bulletin announcing that the president's condition was grave.

The effect of this announcement was to plunge the president's party into deep gloom and fear. This was heightened by the carefully worded reference to the fact that he was "temperamentally well adapted" to fight off the infection. Nothing was said as to his physical equipment for the battle with death, for his doctors knew he had virtually exhausted his physical resistance. That was apparent to them when their 5:30 examination showed a drip in temperature, accompanied by a sharp increase in pulse and respiration. Ordinarily, increased pulse and respiration would have been marked by rising, rather than falling temperature. The fact that the temperature went down indicated extremely low resistance and it was obvious then to the physicians that the danger of pneumonic inflammation was increasing.

Then the X-ray confirmed their apprehension in that regard. The "definite central patches" spoken of in the bulletin were small and not connected.

During the night he fell asleep. That was taken as a hopeful sign, an indication that nature might be rallying last reserves to rout the toxine. Before he went to sleep, the president had a little milk toast. He seemed to enjoy it. He was cheerful. He was fighting.

A few months ago he stood by the bedside of Mrs. Harding while she fought out, single handed, her own grim battle. He could do nothing then. The doctors told him so and begged him to go to bed. He shook his head and paced hour by hour up and down the rug in his room at the White House, trying to add his strength to hers and help her through the crisis. The doctors said afterwards that Mrs. Harding's splendid will would beat off death.

Today that same splendid will was being exerted, much as Mr. Harding's was in the long nights of that other critical time. Mrs. Harding, whom Dr. Sawyer described simply as "one of those creatures who shows up best under fire" was standing by, keeping her head up and her eyes dry and facing all the cold medical facts as they were brought to her by Dr. Sawyer. She knew the fight her man was facing; she knew that he, who is seldom alone, was alone at last and that all she could do was to pray and smile. They who came from the sick room said she was doing both.

Tanks of oxygen were carried into the presidential suite during the night so that they would be available if needed. Up to an early hour this morning they had not been used. At 1 a. m. the president was reported by George B. Christian, Jr., his secretary, to be sleeping.

Outside the sick room there was a constant coming and going. Hundreds of baskets of gorgeous hued flowers were taken to the president's suite, so that there was not room for them all. Mrs. Harding sent many of these messages of sympathy to the bedsides of disabled soldiers and other San Francisco hospital patients.

Men and women went to the gold and old rose screen which stood across the hotel corridor as a deadline against intrusion by any but those whose mission of healing gave them admittance to the sick room. They went to ask "how is he?" and to send in cards and words of sympathy to cheer Mrs. Harding. Senator Shortridge arrived about midnight. He had been in Yosemite park waiting to show the president the wonders of that place.

Hospitals opened their doors. Dr. Sawyer announced that he would not remove the president to a hospital, as he could be cared for just as well in the hotel. Sawyer said that the finest possible laboratory facilities had been placed at his disposal and that therefore there was no need of a hospital. Keeping the president in the hotel permits Mrs. Harding to stay near him, and that, Dr. Sawyer holds, is likely to be an advantage.

Sawyer, a little old fashioned "country doctor" as he is sometimes called, is fighting for the president's life with an equipment of many years' intimate knowledge of his patient's life, his mental and physical habits. On the scientific side he has called to his aid Dr. Ray M. Cooper, a heart specialist of note. He also is aided by the splendid scientific knowledge of Dr. Joel T. Boone, a quiet, unassuming congressional medal of honor navy doctor, whom everybody likes and has confidence in. Sawyer is apply his intimate knowledge of his patient's psychology to the case quite as much as he is using his medical knowledge.

President Harding's nurse is Miss Ruth Powderly, a navy nurse—a blue-eyed Irish girl—who also helped nurse former President Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Harding. Miss Powderly rates high in the navy nursing service.

At a meeting of the executive board of Glendale Community Service held Monday noon, Richardson D. White was appointed as chairman of a committee to investigate the matter of a site suitable for the presentation of a pageant some time this fall.

Mrs. J. R. Case gave a complete report of the activities of the social recreation committee, of which she is chairman. Special arrangements are being made to secure special rates for horseback riding. Any who have not already indicated their preference for that are advised to get in touch with Community Service.

COMMANDERY TO ATTEND FUNCTION AT HOLLYWOOD

President's Secretary to Attend Reception at the Beauseant

At the meeting of Glendale commandery held Monday night, interest centered in the plans made for attendance on the great concourse to be held in Hollywood Bowl Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the traveling beauseant will be presented to this jurisdiction of Knights Templar, to be held by the Hollywood commandery until such time as a grand encampment of the United States of America shall order it sent to another grand jurisdiction.

The presentation was to have been made by President Harding, but his illness having made necessary the cancellation of all his Southern California engagements, his secretary, George B. Christian, who is also a Knight Templar, will act in his stead.

It is expected that not less than $100,000 persons will be present in the bowl to witness the ceremony. All the commanderies in this jurisdiction are expected to participate in full regalia, carrying the national colors as well as the colors of the order. They will meet at the Hollywood temple and march from there to the bowl to the music of about fifteen bands.

Glendale Knights Templar are instructed to meet at the Glendale temple on South Brand at 1:30 o'clock Thursday, where they will don uniforms and proceed from here to Hollywood temple.

Masonic officials declare it will be one of the biggest affairs and one of the most impressive ceremonials that has ever taken place in the United States.

Admission to the bowl will be limited to ticket holders. It is expected that all commandery members, their wives and families, will be present. Tickets have been sent to the Glendale commandery and were given out Monday evening. Those undistributed are now in the hands of Riley Lyons, custodian of the Glendale Masonic temple.

Boy Scouts have been invited to the pageant, but to what extent they will participate under the changed conditions due to the absence of President Harding is not yet known.

GUNNING FOR GRASSHOPPERS

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 31. (United Press).—The very latest way of getting rid of grasshoppers was revealed here recently with the shooting of L. P. Nelson's cow. The cow was badly wrecked, though not fatally hurt by a charge of shotgun shot. John Quachelli, who was accused of damaging the bovine, said he was shooting at grasshoppers when the cow got in the way. He declared he could kill a hundred grasshoppers at one shot.

To his surprise the fish when opened contained the missing tackle.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones are eloping for the month of August and refuse to say where they are going, or how. The conditions which they want to secure—a lodge in some vast wilderness, remote from the telephone, points to an air trip, or a voyage on some ship which is not equipped with wireless. All the information they have vouchsafed is that they intend to escape from the "cares that infest the day," and that their home on Kenneth road in their absence will be occupied by old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Schultz.

'PAWNED' IS STILL POPULAR AT THE GATEWAY

"Pawned," which has begun its engagement at the Gateway theater, has about all the qualities necessary to make it appeal to practically every class of theatergoers. It is a high class production from the standpoint of scenic investiture and photography, it is splendidly acted throughout, and more importantly, it is filled with the kind of action which gets real emotional response from those who see it.

"Pawned" is from a story by Frank L. Packard, author of "The Miracle Man," which was first published in Munsey's magazine and later in book form. Its principal characters are all unusual types. One has pawned his life to a gambler, another his soul to dope, another his soul to drink, and still another—a beautiful girl—her soul to save the life of the man she loved.

There are all kinds of nice things which might be said of "Pawned." That it is entirely satisfying screen entertainment embraces them all. The splendid balance in the work of the players is, perhaps, worthy of special mention. Tom Moore and Edith Roberts are the featured players and the way they handle their roles entitles them to this distinction. James Barrows, in the role of an old cab driver, who has wrecked his life through drink, and Charles Girard, as a brilliant young physician who has been turned into a beast through an uncontrollable appetite for drugs, may be said to be equally effective in their work.

Elaine Hammerstein the delightful and dainty star of a score of screen romances has at last entered the ranks of the independent movie makers and will be seen in her newest production, "Broadway Gold" at the popular T. D. & L. theater on Wednesday and Thursday.

"Broadway Gold" is as its name signifies, a romance dealing with life and vicissitudes of the Great White Way, as the Main Street of New York is popularly termed.

The picture is an elaborate screen adaptation of W. Carey Wonderley's story which created much comment when it ran in Young's magazine. It is said to be a very faithful and true recital of life among the habitues of Broadway's exotic night life. Into this swirling vortex of gaiety and unconventionalities a young and unsophisticated girl is thrown by the force of circumstances. The narrative of her temptations, her adventures, her loves and final escape from her environment make a movie tale which is decidedly unique and unusual.

The picture was produced and directed by Edward Dillon, who was also responsible for "Women Men Marry" as well as many of the successes presented to the public by Goldwyn, Famous Players and the other large producers.

While Miss Hammerstein heads the cast, the picture can be truthfully called an all-star production. Elliot Dexter appears in the chief male role while the old favorite Kathlyn Williams appears in the greatest part of her career as Jean Valjean, a beautiful, but worldly wise denizen of Manhattan's roaring "Forties."

Other prominent members of the cast include Richard Wayne, Harold Goodwin, Harry Northrup, as well as Henry Barrows. "Broadway Gold" as well as all future Elaine Hammerstein pictures will be offered to the picture going public by the Truart Film organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Curren Swint of San Francisco were dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. N. Nettleton last Sunday evening. Mr. Swint is dramatic editor of the San Francisco Call. During their stay in Los Angeles Mr. and Mrs. Swint have been the inspiration of many charming affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wildhack of Pekin, Ill., are the guests of their son, Robert Wildhack of South Los Angeles avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Wildhack will remain in Southern California for two months.

THOUSANDS OF PRINTERS TO SEE REAL BASEBALL

NEW YORK, July 31.—Thousands of printers from many cities of the United States and Canada will rally here August 4, for the annual tournament of the Union Printers' International Baseball league. Teams from fourteen cities will participate. One lost game eliminates a team, the series lasting only seven days, barring a tie.

The opening game will be marked by a parade of the teams and their rooters, starting at Battery Park and ending at city hall, where Mayor Hylan, himself an ex-printer and vice president of the Printers' league, will deliver an address of welcome. The mayor will also attend the opening game and social events, scheduled for the week.

A huge baseball, manufactured by a nationally known sporting goods house, will be mounted on a float at the head of the parade. A team of small boys on a miniature diamond will also have a float. Thousands of small balloons, bearing stitches like baseballs will be spanked from the cars by paddles in hands of players. Each balloon will bear the name of a city in the league. The giant baseball will bear the names of all the cities.

The Garry Herrmann trophy, presented to the league by the Cincinnati baseball magnate, who is a member of the union, has been on display in Fifth avenue jewelry stores and in sporting goods stores here for several days. It consists of two silver crossed bats, life size, and a group consisting of pitcher, catcher and batter mounted at the base. The Boston printers' team has been permanently awarded a trophy given by Mr. Herrmann several years ago, on the strength of four victories.

Each day of the tournament will see a double header. In the drawings eastern teams will be matched against western teams at the beginning, thus arousing sectional as well as inter-city interest. Cities represented in the league include: New York, Boston, Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Toronto, Can., Hamilton, Can., Philadelphia and Detroit.

The Hotel Astor will be headquarters for the printers and on the occasion of the annual banquet the dining rooms will be turned over to them. Saturday night, August 4, "Big Six" union of New York will give a minstrel show and dance at the Astor. Boatrides on East river and the Hudson have been arranged and automobiles will be provided to carry the visitors to every point of interest in or near the greater city.

In memory of pre-war days, when beer was still a popular drink and Coney Island was looked upon as the seventh wonder of the world, one whole day will be devoted to a clam bake and sea food banquet at the Sherbourne hotel at Coney Island. In 1908, the year of the first tournament, the printers made their headquarters at the Sherbourne, which was then known as the Riccadonna hotel.

FLOWER HOLDERS TO MATCH CHINA

Have you noticed how many tea sets are provided with flower holders to match the china? It is a pretty trick, this one, of having flowers always accompanying our refreshments, and it is doubly attractive when the flowers are especially planned and placed in a special border.

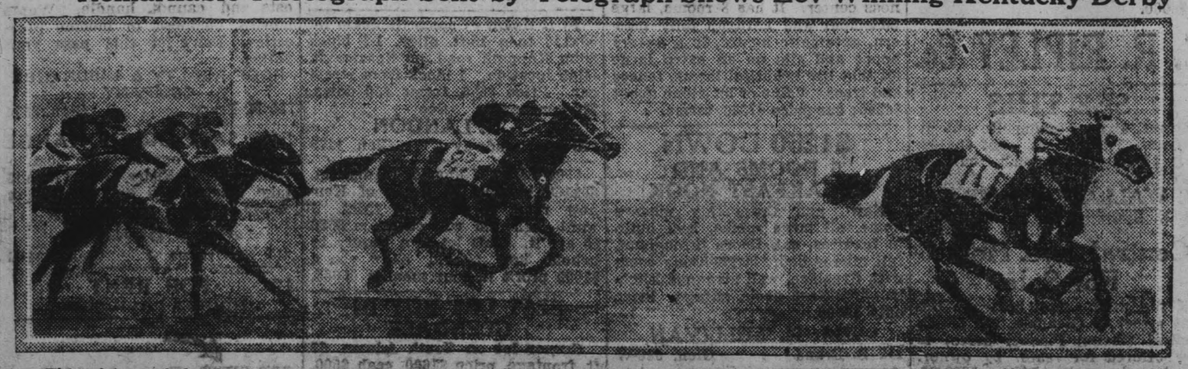
Remarkable Photograph Sent by Telegraph Shows Zev Winning Kentucky Derby



This picture of the finish of the Kentucky Derby, an actual photograph transmitted over the wire from Louisville to New York, shows how Harry F. Sinclair's sturdy brown colt Zev won the 49th running of the classic. The victory of the son of The Finn enriched his owner more than $53,000. Following Zev are seen John S. Cosden's Martingale, Walter J. Salmon's Vigil and Frederick Johnson's Nassau. Zev's victory was a surprise to his owner and trainer, as well as the public, and his price in the betting was 20 to 1.

MOTION PICTURE ENTERS SYSTEM OF EDUCATION

The motion picture is rapidly entrenching itself in the educational system of the world as a medium of instruction, according to the National Health Council. Its latest use in this connection is to point out to expectant mothers the value and necessity of prenatal care, which is a type of instruction similar to the teaching by literature and personal contact of the American Child Health association, of which Herbert Hoover is president.

The title of this film is "Out of Everywhere." It is in one reel and gives the instruction that an expectant mother should have as to the care of herself and the preparations she should make for the birth of her child. The main points in personal hygiene are touched upon as well as suggestions as to the part played by the public health nurse, the clinic and the family doctor.

The picture directs attention to the co-operation necessary between the doctor, the nurse and the family, and is well suited for the audiences for which it is intended, namely adult women.

The American Child Health association is waging a campaign to bring about a general improvement not only in conditions for expectant mothers but for the child from birth through the school age. Its membership numbers more than 4,000 and extends to many foreign lands. Its headquarters are at 532 Seventeenth street, Washington, and its executive offices at 370 Seventh avenue, New York.

GAME MEN IN GOLF, BOXING AND TENNIS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 30 (United Press).—Bobby Jones, young Atlantic golfer, is one of the best examples of pluck, patience and persistence to be found on the entire list of sport's star athletes.

It took 21-year-old Bobby just seven years to rise to the height of golf when he won the American national open championship, one of the great prizes that the game offers.

When he was a 14-year-old boy, it was too much to expect that he would win a national championship. When he was 16 the job was still too heavy for such youthful shoulders, but when he came to 19 it was expected that he would begin to deliver.

Many theories were advanced when he failed to live up to the reputation he had established as the "boy wonder" of golf. He was said to have been retarded by the adulation he received in his kid days; it was suggested that he had too much temperament to become a champion, and finally it was intimated that he didn't have the "heart" to get "out of the rough" that is on the course of every championship.

No greater test of his courage could have been asked than that which he faced when he was forced to play off a tie for the championship at Inwood. Where he failed previously on the last hole, causing some to sniff that he couldn't "carry weight," he rose to the heights of brilliance in the last hole of the crucial test and won from an opponent whose gameness never had been questioned.

Perhaps nothing that is attached to the open title itself came up to the joy that was his when he was able to show that he had the heart and the game of a real champion.

* * *

Another great athlete who vindicated himself recently was Tommy Gibbons, and he had to do something that no other boxer had done to show that he too had a great heart.

Gibbons had to stay 15 rounds with Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion, under odds that would have made the stoutest of hearts waver, to show some of the eastern wise men that he had at least the heart of a champion.

When experts' opinions were being expressed after the Dempsey-Gibbons match had been made, many of the trained experts said that Gibbons could not last more than a few rounds. They granted that he had the technical qualification of a fine boxer and a heavy hitter, but that he could not stand rough going.

Gibbons had never met anything but set-ups, it was pointed out, and when he went up against Harry Greb, his timid heart made him step back several times when it looked like a little more aggressiveness might have given him a knockout victory.

Gibbons was sick the last time he fought Greb, but he did not advertise it and he did not alibi. He had an abscess in one of his front teeth when he fought Dempsey, but he said nothing about that.

The only thing he did do was to go in and stay 15 rounds under punishment that at times almost hurt the spectators.

No other light heavyweight in the game would have consented to fight Dempsey under straight rules. Few heavyweight would do the same thing, but Gibbons accepted the rules and a hand-picked referee without a grumble or a protest.

Tommy Gibbons may not be listed on the record books when he gets through as "one of the best fighters," but he certainly will be listed as a game fighter.

* * *

During the recent clay court championships, Bill Tilden, the greatest of them all, protested about the conduct of the gallery during one of his matches.

Some comment suggested that no game man would allow the crowd to bother him.

Tilden's objections were on purely ethical grounds. It is considered very poor etiquette for a tennis gallery to applaud a champion's errors and much worse to make any kind of a demonstration while a point is being played.

There is no gamer player on the court than Bill Tilden, and there is no finer sportsman, or none who has done more for tennis.

While Tilden was playing Norton, three years ago at Wimbledon, the crowd was decidely pro-Norton, and it applauded very point he made, but Tilden never opened his mouth.

British galleries, scholled in etiquette, applauded after the point had been made, and Tilden accepted that as being proper.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., said in a Y. M. C. A. address in New York: "Scientific management is here to stay. Those who oppose it are as shiftless as the old earl. The old earl, before going to his bath to dress for dinner one evening, for some reason counted his money, six 5-lb. notes, and laid them on his dressing table as usual. On returning from his bath he again counted his money, and one of the 5-lb. notes were missing. He looked ruefully at his valet busily fastening pearl studs in his evening shirt. 'Humph,' said the old earl, 'loss of 5-lbs. I never counted my money before and I never will again. It doesn't pay.'"

The hill was steep and the load heavy. The donkey did its best; but at last it stopped, and would not budge another inch.

Just then the driver saw a man passing.

"Excuse me," he said, "but could you help me to get this load to the top of the hill? It's too much for one donkey."

OCEAN DERELICT OUT

ILWACO, Wash., July 31 (United Press)—Wreck of the old vessel, the Harvest Home, which has been a menace to North Beach automobilists for years, has finally been removed, after lying 40 years on the sand. Workmen placed a huge charge of dynamite under the rotting hulk and blew it out of the sand. The beach is being used for automobile races, and the wreck has lost its value as a tourist attraction.

IVORY PENDANT FROM ORIENT

Brought from the Orient and just the thing to give individuality to a simple costume, is a pendant of ivory exquisitely carved and swung from a black silk cord. There are earrings to match.

"'Tis a fine kid ye have here," said Terrence. "A magnificent head and noble features. Could ye lend me a couple o' bob?"

"I could not," replied Pat, promptly. "'Tis me wife's child by her first husband!"

A Home First — then an automobile

HOME OWNING IS MODERN DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AND REPRESENTS THE BEST OF INVESTMENTS

Home owners are the backbone of any community, of any nation. They are the people who count in any locality. To be a really effective force in any neighborhood, you must belong to that locality.

To be known as a HOME OWNER is the best recommendation possible for you. It gives you the stamp of stability. It ranks you among the earnest, thrifty people who are successful or on the way to success. It gives you the confidence, not only of your immediate neighbors, but of the banker, the merchant, the community at large.

Success is founded on the confidence people have in you. Owning your home helps you in business. No matter what your work or your position may be, owning your home will help you to better things.

FAMILIES OF MODERATE CIRCUMSTANCES will readily agree that there is no comparison between an ideal home and an automobile. The one assures happiness, contentment, ideal environments, protection and absolute assurance of investment—one that increases rather than depreciates in value—and the upkeep of an automobile will go a long way toward meeting living expenses.

We concede that an automobile is a modern attraction, but it is folly for families who are not proud possessors of their own homes to undertake automobile ownership.

Our photographic plan service will tell you in advance what the home will look and be like and what it will cost to build—and you are to feel welcome to advise with this service at your convenience.

Truths in Epigram

There is no debt with so much prejudice put off as that of justice. — Plutarch.

It is better that some should be unhappy, than that none should be happy, which would be the case in a general state of equality.—Johnson.

DESPERATION IN GERMANY

According to late advices the situation in Germany, particularly as to the Ruhr, is approaching a climax of frightfulness. Starvation is the latest element with which the inhabitants of that region have to contend. It is an enemy that may not be resisted. The Ruhr invasion is developing into a tragedy no less appalling than war itself. Apparently Germany must accept some definite course, or cease to be a government. Two plans at least have been suggested. One is that Germany dissolve into the separate states out of which it was formed; the other that the rich men, who since the war have gobbled up virtually all the wealth of Germany, undertake payment of reparations according to some reduced scale.

From a distance the second project seems fair enough. Germany, its property taken over by a few magnates, may be helpless to pay. The bales of money turned out by its printing presses are worthless trash. It could not be utilized in paying any obligation. The magnates probably would gain by taking over the national obligation. Greatly as the responsibility would impair their resources, they would have something left. With Germany no longer a power, even in form, but its national career closed, they might have nothing.

And just as Germany is in these direful straits, almost hopeless, talk is revived of the Hohenzollerns scheming to regain the throne. Tragic as the situation is, this ambition introduces a factor almost of comedy.

THE POISONED CUP

There is more than one reason why the present traffic in liquor causes indignation. The first is due to the belief of citizens in general that the law should be obeyed, and that the constitution of the United States imposes certain obligations upon the people who live under its protection. They object to seeing the statutes defied. They are aware that men of excellent standing in other respects encourage traffic in forbidden liquors, being regular customers of the bootlegger. To buy such liquors requires a large amount of money. The rich man who chooses to evade the law is able to do so. Prohibition thus stands as a restraint for the poor and not for the rich. It therefore comes to be regarded as having been designed to be so, and it falls into the disesteem of bloth classes. As it goes down, it drags other laws. Ignoring all restriction sought to be placed on crime, there is a general sinking of the public morale. When the breaking of one law is winked at, the integrity of all law is being attacked. Men habitually guilty of this assault on law, have no patience with the more open offender who drinks poisonous "moonshine" and as a consequence lands in jail or hospital, if not the morgue. They do not seem to realize that they are responsible for him.

Aside from the ethical equation, it is well to consider the danger to health involved in the sale of poison drinks. Many a moderate drinker of former times, even though in the beginning opposed to prohibition, is now a total abstainer. In some instances this is from principle. He believes in obedience to the law. He recognizes and respects the plain duty of citizenship. He holds in open contempt the hypocrisy that traffics with the bootlegger. In other cases, abstention is due to literal fear of consequences. Men who know what whisky is, and would not object to partaking, could the stuff be obtained legally, object to sacrificing life or health for the privilege of sipping from a poisoned cup.

CRITICISM BY INUENDO

A writer opposed to the Harding administration, but friendly to the bolshevist regime, says that what this country needs is a man like Peter the Great, without Peter's Asiatic savagery, "We need a man," he continues, "whose mind would not be on golf, trout fishing or palavering, but everlastingly on American construction."

The writer in question professes to be a student of affairs and of human nature. The ambition to acquire broad knowledge is highly creditable. Evidence that he has procured it, is, in this instance, lacking. He might get started on his way by reading a recent article from the pen of Sam Blythe. This touches upon the career and the personality of President Harding in a very enlightening fashion. It might be read profitably by all citizens. It should be read and studied, particularly by the important coterie that endeavors to instruct the public. In it are refuted all the charges made by inuendo; a method of attack, by the way, not wholly devoid of the element of meanness.

A modern Peter the Great as a factor in promoting civilized progress is too palpable an anomoly to be considered. He could have no part to play, since he would have to undertake the role of dictator. Deprived of the quality of savagery, he could not be Peter the Great. The record of Peter was due largely to traits utterly out of keeping with modern thought. However potent his mentality may have been, he was a tyrant, bloody-minded as any of the monsters of history. The Russia that was developed partly by the impulse due to his energy, crashed to ruin. So complete had been the mischief wrought, that the people of Russia, when the moment of collapse arrived, lacked the intelligence to build anew. Instead, they permitted power to be seized by an oligarchy as cruel, as hateful, and far more contemptible than ever had held sway under a czar.

The suggestion that the United States needs a Peter the Great might have been expected from the admirer of Lenine and Trotzky, but it fails to convince. This country needs a Peter as much as it needs such creatures as now dominate soviet Russia, but no more.

It is pleasing to announce that the effort to mar the planning system of Los Angeles has failed. Such effort should fail there and in every other city that has the hope and design of growing to a form of beauty. However, the disappointed commercial interests intend to appeal to the court, where their defeat is greatly to be desired.

The Duke of Manchester is attracting more attention than he deserves by reason of his biographical chatter. There is nothing of value in the stuff, either of fact or form. On the contrary it is wholly unreliable, the effort of the duke to pat himself on the back.

Suit has been brought by the ex-crown prince of Germany for certain lands formerly belonging to the crown. No stretch of imagination can perceive the action as being sustained. The Hohenzollerns are deeply in the debt of the country they are suing.

UNRULY MUNICIPALITIES

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

In two states, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, it is now a misdemeanor to save daylight.

Whatever else municipalities save they must spend daylight as a drunken sailor spends his income. Cities in those quaint and quiet states, if they are guilty of the offense of setting their clocks forward so as to induce the citizenry to rise earlier than the unassisted sun would make them rise can be fined roundly, all the way from $10 to $100.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

It's now midsummer and most people have settled down to the regulation hours, but here and there are a few primitive souls who long for an hour or so of fresh, undiluted morning air. They could have it but for the firm determination of the state legislatures not to allow mere humans to interfere with nature.

We could all get up an hour earlier and save that much daylight, but if we did we would have to retire earlier and so shut off the gas and electricity. Far be it from a mere observer to suggest that lighting companies can influence legislation—perish the thought.

It's the farmers who influenced the legislatures of Pennsylvania and Connecticut; we have this from the legislatures. Cows refuse to be milked an hour earlier than usual; chickens will not eat until the breakfast hour that has become hallowed by custom; all this disturbs the farmer and makes him unhappy. Why the farmer can't do something else in the extra hour before regulation feeding time is not explained; it's always easier to make a legislature jump through the hoop than it is to make yourself change a life program.

Because the farmer finds the milk cows sulky when awakened too early city folks have to sleep when they would prefer to wake and live and they have to stay office-bound for a longer period of daylight than necessity, when viewed sanely, decrees.

It's odd what a number of harmless things have, under the lash of political or economic agitation, become misdemeanors. Old-fashioned people used to think that a misdemeanor was what the dictionary declares it to be, viz., "ill behavior," "evil conduct," "a crime less than a felony." All that kind of thing has become anacronistic. A misdemeanor is today anything that the other fellow—provided he is powerful enough to frighten some legislative body—says it is. Per se what is wrong about a municipality, the majority of whose citizens wish to rise early and enjoy God's fresh air—setting its clocks back? There is nothing wrong, but two state legislatures have made innocent conduct wrong and affixed a fine to it.

In Los Angeles a city council, under the spur of political need has made it a misdemeanor to do simple and kindly a thing as to feed beautiful pigeons in Pershing square. Tomorrow it may be wrong and a finable offense to contribute to the relief of crippled children or to help maintain a home for the aged.

But, heaven bless us, the people don't mind. They elect legislative bodies and then let them function any old way at all. That's why things have become crimes that were never crimes before.

Fancy making it a misdemeanor to set your clock back—and in time of peace at that. We are a funny folk and getting funnier all the time. It's a misdemeanor to inconvenience a farm cow, but all right to inconvenience the population of an entire city, which shows why some cows chose to be born quadrupeds rather than bipeds, as well as why some bipeds could with consistency have been born quadrupeds. I'm not saying who; if I did that too might be a misdemeanor.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"WHO" LOOKS AHEAD

Who looks ahead, never back, when it wants to decide on how it should dress, whether it should take on the appearance of whom or remain who. It does not govern its appearance by the preceding word to which it refers, but by its relation to other words with which it is closely associated.

In the sentence, "I know him who will help us," who is not influenced by him and it, therefore, does not take on the appearance of whom. It is who because of its place in the expression, "who will help us."

In other words (avoiding the use of grammatical terms) one should say that the choice of who or whom is never dependent upon the word to which it refers.

Gertrude Coon, of Des Moines, Iowa, has asked that "The Right Word" decide upon either who or whom in the following sentence: "Give your name to some one who (or whom) you think will be there." Miss Coon says, "Opinion seems to be about equally divided in regard to the use of these two pronouns."

Read again the explanation in the first part of this article. The choice of who or whom has nothing to do with some one. It is dependent upon the place of the word in the expression, "who will be there."

"You think" is parenthetical. So give no consideration to this parenthetical expression when you are trying to make a choice between who and whom.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

The Apostle said:
"I have fought the good fight. I have kept the faith."

The words may not be exact.

But the meaning is unmistakable.

Whatever may be the words.

* * *

The Apostle did not mean that he had made no mistakes.

Or that he had not sometimes failed of his purpose.

Or that he had achieved victory always.

But he meant that he had struggled to the best goal he saw and had not lost his faith.

* * *

He had hewn along a pretty straight line.

Obstacles he had sought to surmount.
Difficulties he had tried to solve.
Discouragements to rise above.
Trials to overcome.

* * *

Fight has been a much used and much abused word.

It has been used generally to indicate a battering of human beings by each other until one has been overcome.

Sometimes out of mere hatred.
Sometimes out of envy or jealousy.
Sometimes for a prize.

* * *

So the word has come to be a kind of stench in many nostrils.

Accompanied with mental visions of fists and nails and legs all flying about in a brutal combat.

When there is a higher significance to the word.

Struggle toward victory.
And that is what fighting is.

* * *

Even in its lowest terms it is a struggle toward victory.

But the dignity of the word and the struggle depend upon what victory means to you.

Does it mean merely physical superiority?

Does it mean only the gaining of property or things through strength and power?

Or does it mean victory over yourself?

* * *

You have ideals.
They may have changed.
But eventually you have an idealism of the spirit that is pretty constant.
And do you keep the faith?
That is what the Apostle took pride in having done.
In having kept the faith.

* * *

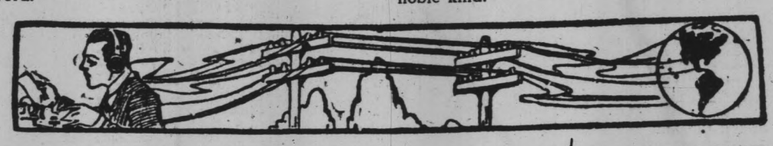
With your ideals?
With your tasks?
With your duty?
With your family?
With your country?
With your friends?
With your associates in whatever capacity?
Have you kept the faith?

* * *

Not that you have not fallen.
But if you have fallen to rise again.
Not that you have not failed.
But if you have failed to strive again.
Not that you have not erred.
But if you have erred to make amends for error.

* * *

To keep the faith.
To fight the good fight.
To struggle toward victory of a high and noble kind.



Songs of the Poets

Song (From the Miller's Daughter)—By Alfred Tennyson

It is the miller's daughter,
And she is grown so dear, so dear,
That I would be the jewel
That trembles in her ear;
For hid in ringlets day and night,
I'd touch her neck so warm and white.

And I would be the girdle
About her dainty, dainty waist,
And her heart would beat against me
In sorrow and in rest;
And I should know if it beat right,
I'd clasp it round so close and tight.

And I would be the necklace,
And all day long to fall and rise
Upon her balmy bosom
With her laughter or her sighs
And I would lie so light, so light,
I scarce should be unclasped at night.

THE CERTAINTY OF UNCERTAINTY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE one thing that is certain in this life is uncertainty.

One of the strongest and most common delusions is safety.

The very basic conditions of human existence are extremely tenuous and elusive.

This globe on which we live rests on no rock foundation, but is whirling through space like a cannon ball. It retains its shape merely because of the rapidity of its motion, as a top stands only so long as it spins.

I thought of this the other day when I crossed the ocean and looked out at that vast flat surface that had lain at its level throughout the centuries, and yet retains its fixity of place and is prevented from flying off as vapor into space by the delicately balanced forces that govern the earth's revolution.

I was made more conscious of the precariousness of all things by a little accident that happened on the journey. We had come some five thousand miles from the west coast of America to Japan and had made the trip as comfortably as if we had been spending the time in a New York hotel. Just as we were entering the Yokohama Harbor a dense fog settled down over us. Although the ship proceeded slowly and three or four officers upon the bridge were constantly alert, we ran aground upon a sand bar. The accident was not serious and the vessel after a delay of two hours managed to wriggle off and proceed in safety to the dock.

But in the discussion of this occurrence several interesting points came up.

The matter would have to be reported, of course, to the authorities and some were fearful lest it should go hard with the captain. Although the captain was a man of long and honorable record, both in the merchant marine and in the British navy during the war, yet no captain is supposed to allow his ship to run into anything. When that ship is in motion it is a mass of some twenty thousand tons or more, and any impact, even the slightest, of such a bulk with an immovable object is terrific. The ship would have to be put in dry dock and gone over carefully, no matter how slight the damage may have seemed.

Beside this I was told that the compass, which every landlubber supposes to be absolutely dependable, is subject to strange fluctuations. There are electrical currents from the body of the ship itself and from other external conditions. These can never be absolutely corrected until the gyroscopic compass is brought to perfection. The gyroscope will hold steady under all conditions because it does not depend upon electricity so much as it depends upon the direction of the earth's revolution.

We go on entrusting our property and our lives, not to certainties, but to the preponderance of probabilities, which we have worked out to the best of our ability.

Man, as well as the insects of the air, is a creature of a short time, and even if he stays in bed and remains behind iron bars he cannot evade danger and death. It is only a question of time until each one of us comes to that point and hour marked for us in the book of fate.

Man is an inhabitant of the Island of Chance, in the vast Ocean of Mystery.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DAWN TO DARK AT DOORN

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

The ex-kaiser, in his gilded cage at Doorn, is quoted as saying: "I sketch a little, compose now and then, go walking, and so the day passes." For a man who aspired to make himself master of the world, could a more stirile, futile existence be imagined?

In the pre-war life at Berlin, Wilhelm the grandiose, self-centered megalomaniac sought to establish a reputation for omniscience and omnipotence. Still he drags about on his shoulders the pitiful regalia of magnificence and clings to the pinch-back, faded remnants of his glory.

Who envies Wilhelm, merely striving to pass the time, unable to flee from his own imaginings, dwelling forever in reflections that are as the torments of hell?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The deputy state superintendent of instruction holds that if a married woman teaches school, her husband may legally collect the salary she earns. He says this is according to California law. If he is correct, it is a rotten law. "The law is an ass," said Beadle Bumble years ago. He did not have this particular law in mind. In the presence of this law, the voluble beadle would have been speechless.

HENRY JAMES

Granting that the law is good, meaning that it is on the statute books, it wouldn't work. No woman with sense enough to teach school would give her pay to her husband unless such was her desire. It might be her wish to give it to him to be invested in community property. Otherwise she would cash her own pay check, and tell him to earn his money, or go without. If he were to insist, she would give him unconditional release from the position of husband. If he were to succeed in his robbery scheme, despite her protest, the real men of the neighborhood would run him out of the community.

Not long ago the mayor of a great city welcomed a convention of men concerned in an industrial activity. Before he finished he told them that if they chanced to violate certain restrictions as to methods of personal indulgence, he was sure the authorities would be lenient. The violations followed. Also the leniency.

But the granting of this sort of blanket license must be regarded as unusual. To some it may not seem wise.

* * *

Another couple who defied the conventions have paid the penalty. Both are dead by the hand of the man. He had left his wife for association with another woman, the mother of three children. Apparently she had tired of him. At least she sought to break the relationship. So he shot her and himself, and the episode was closed, except that there are three young orphans to be considered.

A casual glance at the statistical page of a Los Angeles paper one recent morning revealed the fact that thirty-six marriage licenses had been issued the day before. In the next column was a list of more than forty divorces granted or applied for.

Service station operators who brand low grade oil as high grade hardly have made enough profit to pay the fines. That sort of trick costs $100 at current rates, and the rates are likely to advance.

It transpires that a poor dub has just $2000 for the privilege of distributing a $2,000,000 estate. The heirs of the estate did not want the trouble of attending to the matter, and seem not to have thought of hiring a lawyer. All they wanted was the $2000.

There is no use to waste sympathy over the victim. Of course, the swindlers belong to jail, but no more surely than he belongs in a retreat for the mentally maimed.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE WINDOW SHOPPER

It is great fun to go window shopping along the streets of the book sellers. There are books with beautiful bindings and books with plain board backs and books with movie picture jackets and books carefully dressed in such good taste that all you remembered about them is that you were happy to meet them and made an appointment with them for some day when you had the price!

Then there are second hand books that surprise you into wondering how anyone could have bought them first hand. Maybe they were always like that though—born second hand!

You know all the time that their aristocrat relations, first editions of old masters, are in seclusion on the shop shelves safe from the stares of the covetous. I was flattening my nose against the window to catch a glimpse of them when I became aware of the boy.

He was about fifteen. It was Saturday and he had a job. The packages he was to deliver were under his arm. He had a bright clean face with a wind-blow of freckles across it.

His tan-colored flannel shirt had been clean not so long since and I knew that tonight he would have a bath and that his clean clothes would be laid out ready for early church. He looked like that.

He studied the books with calculating and appraising eye. An experienced window shopper. I felt the glow of fellowship, but shyness held my tongue. Together we looked at a stack of Oscar Wilde done in red leather. Leisurely we took in the good points of a pocket edition of Kipling.

With a casual eye we read over the titles of the best sellers spread out in open fan order. We were unmoved and strolled along to the next window.

That was a window! They were beauties. "Robinson Crusoe" done in a blue binding that said as plain as day: "This is where the blue begins!" "The Last of the Mohicans" wearing a jacket that would coax a boy from his dinner! A glorified "Kidnaped" and a "Treasure Island" open to the picture of the fearful blind man tapping his way down the road to the inn. That was a picture to pull you through the glass.

A "Huckleberry Finn" and an Abraham Lincoln picture bearing a legend that said something about building character.

We surveyed the array and sighed. "Look good?" I ventured.

"Yes," said he with the brief directness of sincerity.

"Which is yours?"

"This," said he tapping the glass with his toe and hitching the packages more securely under his arms. 'Twas the best boys' book in the lot. The very one that I love best.

We beamed and nodded like a pair of mandarins. Then he remembered his errands and I mine and we set about our business, and "blithely," as Stevenson would have us do.

All the way home I thought of the boy and wondered who it was who loved him well enough and regarded the masters truly enough to make them friends. His mother? His teacher? The librarian? Someone was building a fine boy. Fortunate lad. Happy somebody.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

It looks to me as though Mrs. Jimmy Fisher cost her husband a contract last night. Not fair, of course. Jim has been making good and working hard. But I think Mrs. Jimmy queered him.

Funny how often wives do that little thing. And how blandly unconscious they are that they interfere. And how wildly indignant they would be if that were suggested. Anyhow the man who had the contract to give asked Jim and his wife to dine with him at a restaurant.

"Mrs. Fisher will not mind," he said, "if we talk this matter over. She knows that I have not had time to go into it."

"Oh, not at all," said Mrs. Jimmy.

Now, Mrs. Jimmy does not get out often. Jimmy has no time to tote her through the bright lights. He may not have the money. When Mrs. Jimmy does get out she always makes the most of it. Her host of the evening asked her what she wanted to eat—and she told him. Everything but the fresco on the north wall. Her eyes grew as greedy as those of a little pig.

"Not all that, surely," Jimmy protested.

"You forget this is a treat for me," whined Mrs. Jimmy. "I don't dine down town every day like you do. I never get out to see anything. I live a coop-up, monotonous life. I love to enjoy myself but I never get a chance. It's too bad about me. Oh, how I suffer."

So the two men gave up their evening to Mrs. Jimmy and she enjoyed herself like a cannibal chief in a missionary meeting and thanked her host most graciously for her pleasant evening.

"You must come out and see us sometimes," she said.

But I'll bet that Jimmy Fisher did not get that contract.

Curing your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

Dear Mr. Barnes: Why do you suppose it is I always slice my brassie strokes although I usually get a pretty straight shot with my driver on the tee? I take substantially the same stances and grip, yet on almost every stroke, the ball sails off to the right in a big arc. I will appreciate any help you may be able to give me.
W. L. P.

Answer: I have no doubt your trouble is due to a little anxiety over the result of the stroke, which causes you to lighten up the muscles of your forearms before the clubhead reaches the ball. In other words instead of leaving your wrists flexible so that they can throw the clubhead forward against the ball, you tighten up and hit on through with the hands leading the clubhead which is drawn across the ball.

If you can't get away from this trouble in any other way, avoid using your brassie for any stroke where you think you are going to have trouble in getting the ball up.

Wait until you get a lie where you are sure you can hit the ball, and then swing as you do on your tee shots where you don't have the mental hazard of doubt. If you once get off a few good brassie it will probably do a lot to restore your confidence, which is no doubt one of the main causes of your trouble.

Forget the idea that you have to get the ball up. If you have a brassie lie and swing through as you would ordinarily, the loft on the face of the club will get it up.

They met by accident in a bank and before long were exchanging loud words. Evidently there was an old grudge between them.

"You looked down on me when I was poor," bawled one. "Today I can write my check for a million."

He wrote a check for a million. "Now I'll show you what I think of a million dollars."

And he tore the check up.

DICKY DIPPY'S DIARY

—By SINNOTT.

WAS OUT MOTORING, AND CAME TO A RIVER AND COULDN'T GET ACROSS, BECAUSE THE BRIDGE HAD BEEN SWEPT AWAY. I WAS WONDERING WHAT I SHOULD DO WHEN I SPIED A RUBE ON THE OPPOSITE SHORE SO I CALLED TO HIM: "HEY, ZEKE, BE THERE ANY WAY OF GETTING MY CAR OVER?"
"THAR'S ONLY ONE WAY I KNOW OF," HE REPLIED.
"AH, GOOD! WHAT WAY'S THAT?"
"JES' SET WHAR YOU ARE AN' THINK IT OVER."

PEACE AWARD ATTRACTS WIDE INTEREST

Yesterday, in her office in the Department of Labor, Washington, Miss Grace Abbott, who is head of the Federal Children's Bureau and who is also unofficial American observer on the commission on the international traffic in women and children of the league of nations, said, in talking with two members of the committee in charge of the American peace award who have been visiting the capitol to confer with various persons and organizations:

"Am I, as one whose job is to discover and promote the welfare of children, interested in the $100,000 award for a plan of co-operating with other nations to achieve world peace? It might well be argued that how to secure world peace is a fundamental problem in child welfare. Since the war, the United States has been spending millions in relief work in Europe—those millions have mainly been devoted to keeping children alive. But hunger is only one in that kingdom of evils in which war has placed so many children. There are millions more who have been taught fear, distrust and hatred, whose education and physical welfare have been sacrificed to equip more and more soldiers. American children who were taken out of schools for work in munition and other factories were enlisted or conscripted for war service long before April of 1917. The present generation is struggling with the question of how to meet the interest on war debts; it is assumed that the children will pay the principal.

"All of us will hope Mr. Bok's offer may bring results. But whatever machinery for co-operation among nations is set in motion, if it is really to function to prevent war, we shall need certain guarantees for children. They must be educated, healthy, happy; trained in self-discipline, to respect the rights of others, to respect differences in others. These guarantees are still needed for many children in the United States for whom we have never secured that equal opportunity to establish which this government was founded; but for the future welfare of American children, such guarantees are needed for children everywhere."

John F. O'Ryan, Major General, O. R. C., believes that the American peace award created by Edward W. Bok is the most effective step taken since the war to develop popular understanding and assure intelligent action.

In a letter just received at the offices of the peace award, General O'Ryan says:

"My judgment on the American peace award is a very decided one. I believe that with a population as great as we have in this country, occupying a territory so extensive, with our numerous and diverse interests, and situated as we are so far from the continent of Europe, our greatest difficulty in playing the role we should play in the carrying on of the world's work is having that great population understand enough of world problems to appreciate the duty which is theirs. The American peace award, in my opinion, is the most effective step that has been taken since the war to (a) attract the attention of the people, (b) arouse their interest, (c) stimulate consideration and study, (d) develop understanding and (e) assure intelligent action."

JAMES W. FOLEY

AT LAST

Ah, yes, I meant to do the work,
And yet the day I did but shirk.
I meant to labor and to serve,
Nor once from the right pathway swerve;
I meant to put the imps to rout
Of ill and cast the evil out,
And make of me a spirit new.
All these the things I meant to do.

Ah, yes, the fire in me was hot
And then I meant to do a lot;
To bring my cheer and sing my song,
To keep my faith the way along;
No easy way of fate to ask
But bear my load and do my task,
Until the day's long hours were through.
All these the things I meant to do.

And now it is the afternoon,
The dusk and twilight coming soon,
The shadows of the sinking sun,
Dear Lord, how little I have done.
I meant to build a temple grand,
Here's but a pebble in my hand—
I wonder fearfully if You
Will weigh the things I meant to do.

EXTENDED LAYOFF BEATS MANY CHAMPIONS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK July 31.—No art can be lost quicker through the lack of practice than boxing. No art is harder to get back than boxing, after a long layoff, in the opinion of Jack McAuliffe, the veteran undefeated lightweight champion.

His theory has been proved three times within the early summer months by Johnny Kilbane, Jimmy Wilde and Jack Dempsey.

Three champions went back into the ring after remaining idle for an average of about two years or more and two of them suffered the penalty of losing their titles.

Kilbane and Wilde were knocked out, and Dempsey, while he retained his championship against Tommy Gibbons, lost a lot of prestige.

Kilbane blames the loss of the featherweight championship to Eugene Criqui, on his long absence from the ring.

"I always watch the feet of my opponent and I knew that Criqui was starting a right-hand punch that proved to be the knockout. I saw it coming, but I felt positive that I was at least a foot out of range. I misjudged the distance and it hit me right on the jaw and knocked me out," Kilbane said.

"Had I boxed oftener and kept my eye tuned up for distance I could have avoided that punch," he said.

* * *

Jimmy Wilde, game little fighter and one of the best champions, remained out of the ring too long. He was knocked out by Pancho Villa and he lost the world's flyweight championship. He did not fight for two years after he was knocked out by Pete Herman in London, and time sapped all his punch and his resistance.

* * *

After Tommy Gibbons had stayed 15 rounds with him in Shelby, Montana, Jack Dempsey replied to the question asking for an explanation of his rather poor showing: "There was nothing the matter with me, only I haven't been fighting enough."

The champion admitted that he didn't win by a knockout because: "I couldn't get a good shot at him."

Gibbons is one of the finest boxers in the world and he is a hard target for any fighter to find, but the Dempsey of Toledo and Jersey City would have crashed through the weaker Gibbons in 15 rounds if the champion's timing and judgment of distance had not been thrown way off by lack of work.

Mrs. Barnett had the reputation of being very keen on making bargains. When she was seen approaching the salesman knew that he might just as well bring out his best goods at once, for it was useless to offer her anything but the best.

Accordingly, the poultry dealer was very much surprised one day when she entered his shop and said, in businesslike tones: "Please pick me out half a dozen tough chickens."

The man looked surprised, but did as she asked, selecting them from 12 birds displayed on the counter.

"Are these all the tough ones you have?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am; these are all," was the reply.

"Then send the other six home to me at once," said sharp Mrs. Barnett
